COMPLIMENTS & COMPLAINTS

If you have a compliment or complaint about any service, please let us know. We have a Complaints Policy and investigate all complaints received. Complaints must be reported in writing, signed and sent to us by recorded delivery. When a complaint is upheld, the organisation concerned is removed from DABS National Resource Directory and in extreme cases further action may be taken. Organisations may be reinstated if and when the cause for complaint has been rectified.

DISCLAIMER

DABS aims to provide you with the most accurate and up to date information on the services it lists in this Directory. However, although we ask all organisations to submit an annual renewal form and to keep us updated of changes; we cannot guarantee that the listed organisations are still active and offering the services published. If you believe that any of the information is to your knowledge inaccurate in any way, please contact us so we can look into it and rectify any discrepancy.

COPYRIGHT NOTICE

General Permission is granted for the purpose of supplying free of charge, all or any amount of information to those outside your organisation, but ONLY to, Individual victims ~ Individual helpers, including ~ Individual professionals.

GENERAL GUIDELINES

The issues to do with abuse and sexual violence: (In this guidance, the terms ‘counselling’ and ‘therapy’ are interchangeable.)

Looking at the issue of abuse and sexual violence is never easy. Even though we know it happens, most people would prefer not to think about it. If you were sexually abused yourself, you may be only too aware of this. You’ve probably already come across people who didn’t want to know, didn’t understand, or didn’t believe your experiences. But things have changed. Nowadays it is possible to find people to talk to about it, and to find help and support to resolve its effects on you.

People, both male and female, who have been victims of abuse, particularly during childhood, can lose all sense of self-worth. They may refuse to believe that anyone will love them no matter what they are told and however much others may value them. Some find it difficult to take care of themselves and often hate their own bodies.

The abused person may go for years, even their whole lives, without telling anyone about what happened to them. As a child, they may have been threatened with frightening consequences if they did speak out, and even now, as adults, they still believe they would only be condemned, accused of lying or rejected.

Others that were abused needed to suppress and block out the memories to survive. They are often left with painful feelings and unwanted behaviours that they can’t explain, and for these, a particular life event, like having a child or losing a loved one, can spark a flashback from their past. Sometimes childhood abuse is discovered when the adult survivor seeks help for another seemingly unrelated problem.

The ways that a child develops to survive abuse can subsequently be destructive in their adult lives. Not feeling anything is one way of surviving abuse, but there comes a time when a person wants to feel and needs to experience their feelings - to feel joy, love, and anger - to live.

Acting and pretending that everything is fine, wearing a ‘mask’ of normality is another survival technique. This may work well as a child, but in later life it can become too much of a strain.

Many victims of sexual violence and childhood abuse will try everything else, and only when it is unavoidable, will they consider dealing with their mistreatment. It is a difficult and brave step. For people who already feel so isolated and mismatched in life, it’s easy for them to give up; to think: ‘Yes, but it won’t be able to help me’.

We build high walls to screen ourselves from painful facts because we have never learned whether or how we can live with this knowledge. `And, why should we?` some people might say. `What's done is done. Why should we go over all that again?` The answer to that question is extremely complex. In this book, I will endeavor to show, by way of various examples, why the truth about our childhood is something we cannot, and should not, forgo, either as individuals or as a society. One of the reasons is that behind the wall we erect to protect ourselves from the history of our childhood still stands the neglected child we once were, the child that was once abandoned and betrayed. It waits for us to summon the courage to hear its voice. It wants to be protected and understood, and it wants us to free it from its isolation, loneliness, and speechlessness. But this child who has waited so long for our attention not only has needs to be fulfilled. It also has a gift for us, a gift that we desperately need if we truly want to live, a gift that cannot be purchased and that the child in us alone can bestow. It is the gift of the truth, which can free us from the prison of destructive opinions and conventional lies. Ultimately, it is the gift of security, which our rediscovered integrity will give us. The child only waits for us to be ready to approach it, and then, together, we will tear down the walls.

Many people do not know this. They suffer from anguishing symptoms. They go to doctors who fend off the necessary knowledge just as they themselves do. They follow the advice that these doctors offer, subjecting themselves, for example, to completely unnecessary operations or other damaging treatments. Or they down sleeping pills to erase the dreams that could remind them of the child waiting behind the wall. But as long as we condemn it to silence, the child's only recourse is to express itself in another language - that of sleeplessness, depression, or physical symptoms. And against these reactions, drugs and tablets are of no help. They simply confuse the adult even more.

Many people are unaware of this, though some have long since sensed this truth and can nonetheless not help themselves. Some sense that to repress feelings of their childhood is to poison the very well-springs of life; they know that though repression may have been necessary for the child's survival - otherwise it might literally have died from the pain - maintaining repression in adult life inevitably has destructive consequences. But in the absence of any other alternative, they regard such consequences as a necessary evil. They don't know that it is indeed possible to resolve childhood repression safely and without danger, and learn to live with the truth. Not all at once. Not by recourse to violent interventions. But slowly, step by step, and with respect for their own system's defense mechanisms, recovery is possible.

I myself did not know this for many years, either. My training in and subsequent practice of psychoanalysis had made me blind to the possibility. But the success of my own experience of the slow integration of individual aspects of my childhood has made me want to pass on that information to all those who suffer because they are cut off from the roots of their own being. Today we can be helped to correct our blindness, to resolve the consequences of old injuries, to access the truth and restore the crucial contact with the child in us so that we can regain those parts of our consciousness that were alienated from us for so long.
Support and Guidance:

What Is Counselling?

Counselling is an opportunity to talk about problems you’re experiencing, with someone who listens and cares. It's based on a relationship of mutual trust and respect that develops between you and your counsellor, so that in time you feel you can talk about any issue and be heard and understand. A counsellor will seldom give direct advice or tell you what to do. The main aims of counselling are to help develop our own insight into problems, help us reassess and improve our coping skills, and to help us find our inner strengths and resources. The overall effect is that we should feel less alone and isolated, less confused and depressed as we begin to understand ourselves better. And less of a victim as we discover we do have choices and can take more control of our lives. Sessions vary in length and frequency depending on the need and how a counsellor works.

Different Forms of Counselling

Telephone & On Line - This can be one-off crisis counselling via a helpline or a regular appointment with your own already established counsellor according to the terms of your contract. Some organisations will be able to phone you back so you don't pay for the call. Free-phone helplines don't usually appear on your itemised phone bill but if this is a concern check it out with the organisation.

For safety reasons, we do not recommend telephone, email or internet counselling from the start, where abuse is concerned, because it is open to misuse, and counselling in this way lacks the personal dynamic which can be so effective. However, if these ways are the only ones available to you, or you do not feel ready for one-to-one or group work, they can be good. If this is your choice, thoroughly check out the service being offered. It should be based at a bone fide address where you could send mail if you need to or visit. Counsellors should belong to one or more of the larger counselling associations such as BACP or the UKCP.

Face-to-face - This is usually one-to-one, in the organisation or counsellor’s own premises. A lot of organisations, such as rape crisis centres, offer face-to-face counselling free. Private Counsellors charge various amounts, usually from £25 to £60 or more per consultation depending on the area where they work, their experience and skill.

Some offer concessions or other ways to assist those on low disposable incomes.

Group work - This usually involves one or two counsellors working with a group of people. This can be offered by voluntary organisations free or may involve payment if provided privately. Sharing each other’s experiences is usually an important part of the process; if facilitated and managed well.

Outreach - This is counselling or support given in the client’s home, school, community centre, or any other premises away from the counsellor’s usual main base or consulting rooms. This can be helpful for clients who have disabilities or other special needs.
More about Costs and your Investment - Organisations such as rape crisis centres offer face-to-face counselling usually free or for a small fee. Private counsellors usually charge, and their fees vary according to qualifications and experience. Some operate a sliding scale according to the income of their clients, or make arrangements to spread the costs over time. Do not reject private therapy because you are concerned about the cost. In many circumstances, they may offer their services free, and many counsellors offer a free introductory consultation. Access to counselling may occur via an Employee Assistance Programme, Occupational Health or your General Practitioner; the duration of counselling in these circumstances is often limited.

When it comes to choosing a particular model of therapy or counselling be wary of those who oversell their methods or make promises to cure quickly and painlessly. No counsellor can or should ever make such assertions in the fields of abuse and sexual violence. Some methods do work quicker than others but only if those methods suit the individual client.

If a counsellor claims to use methods that work quickly it is reasonable to expect them to offer it on a basis where you may delay payment until satisfied or secure a money back guarantee; after all, if you are expected to trust the counsellor it is only fair that the counsellor trusts you.

What is the Best Counselling Style for Me?

Independent studies of different counselling methods have mostly concluded that it is the quality of the relationship between client and counsellor that matters most.

Estimates that therapeutic change is around 40% due to client and extra-therapeutic variables, 30% due to relationship factors, 15% due to expectancy and hope factors, and 15% due to the techniques and models of individual approaches. See Hubble et al. (1999) for much more on common factors.

Other Forms of Help

Some victims of abuse and sexual violence are able to access help for themselves by private study at home from books and other sources of information. This can be invaluable but is an unusual path to full and sustained recovery.

For those who choose to work this way it is wise to have some outside support. Some use the internet to access counselling or support through chat rooms but it is important to check out the validity of such services. Authentic organisations will have land line telephone numbers and addresses which can be validated together with codes of ethics and practice, complaints procedures and be able to provide details of their qualification criteria and insurance arrangements.
What People Should Generally Expect from Counselling and Support Services

It is important that you talk to your counsellor about what your expectations and needs are. Just like any other relationship, the more you know and can communicate what you want and need, the better chance you will have of receiving it and speeding the process. No counsellor has a crystal ball, neither can they mind-read so they will not know your needs or what you are thinking without you telling them. It may be easier at first, to write down needs than to say them.

You may be entering therapy for the first time and have no idea of what will happen other than you want to feel better than you currently do. It is very important that you express all your feelings, thoughts, hopes and fears at the start, and then throughout therapy to the best of your ability. Keeping your feelings about what is said to yourself is your right, but it is not very helpful in a counselling environment if you wish to make progress.

Good therapy is not something done to or for you; it is a living process within which you and the therapist play active parts. Therapy works best when it is an honest two-way process of communication, and you have an equal responsibility.

• It takes time to establish a trusting relationship with a therapist, so expect it to take a few sessions before you feel completely comfortable.
• It is important that you go at your own pace and don't overwhelm yourself. Do not try to rush things for a quick fix, or because you feel you owe it to your partner, or other oughts, shoulds and musts.

We all resist change, so do not be at all surprised if you are tempted to quit therapy just before some real changes or breakthroughs are about to happen. Being committed to therapy can change your life. Be prepared to feel some loss and fear because of this.

Therapy is very often hard work, and can be emotionally draining at times. After an intense therapy session expect to feel exhausted for a while. Counselling outcomes depend very much on your resolve to achieve resolution. Others around you may resist your changes and growth and they will usually need time to adapt to the new you.

• Sometimes, therapy can release emotions and memories that have been "locked in time" for many years, and sometimes after a therapy session you may feel like a child for a while, with a child's fears. It is not unusual when dealing with buried feelings and repressed memories, to actually feel that you are becoming worse than you were before you started.
• Sometimes therapy is short term, sometimes prolonged. Be prepared to take whatever time it takes to get the result you want. Becoming a healthier and balanced person can feel very unfamiliar and uncomfortable at first. This is normal and to be expected.
• Your therapist will not be perfect as a person and will make mistakes as all of us do. Hopefully he or she will acknowledge and take responsibility for those mistakes.
• You should expect your therapist to have good, strong, boundaries, to be ethical and to treat you with respect. The therapist should avoid a dual relationship while your therapy is in process and during your subsequent processing. This means generally that he or she is not there as a support between consultations unless that service is part of the contract. The therapist cannot be a close personal friend although one should expect friendliness and support. Dual relationships include suggestions regarding joint business ventures, provision of accommodation at the counsellor’s home or doing work for them. If a counsellor ever flirts or suggests a sexual relationship with you, leave as soon as you can, do not return and consider reporting the therapist to their regulating body.

There are many therapeutic methods, models and styles, they can't all suit everybody. We are unique, have differences and find ourselves in different situations. If you feel that the therapeutic model or style used by your therapist is inappropriate for your needs, you should talk this through with your therapist and be prepared to change to a different style or a different person.

After therapy one will still encounter the wide range of emotions, from the heights of joy and happiness to the depths of sorrow and rage, that’s life. Good counselling is not about avoiding unpleasant feelings or for that matter inducing and extending the pleasant emotions, but much more about how to use all feelings well. This ability results in a state of growing confidence and self-esteem, a being in touch with one’s real self; whatever the prevailing circumstances.

As a result of therapy what you should feel is a growing sense of wholeness and peace, which on the one hand enables you to enjoy the good in life, while on the other hand helps you to resolve and settle the unpleasant experiences, problems and feelings much more quickly.

Many people believe that once therapy is complete their lives will progress smoothly; that is unreasonable. When you have changed, life will still be difficult at times. You will still be faced with problems, conflicts, loneliness and boredom, as well as achievement and success.

What Does Effective Counselling Feel Like?

You cannot judge whether therapy is good by the way you feel in the moment. Some experience counselling as a haven they can’t wait to get to. Others dread every session and have to force themselves to go. Counselling is not always comfortable. Generally, you know you're with a good counsellor when you develop more and more skills to heal yourself, when you become able to recognise your own patterns and to feel and interpret your own emotions well.

Considerations When Choosing a Service if you are the Victim of Abuse and Sexual Violence

Seeing someone who's experienced in dealing with childhood abuse and sexual abuse has obvious advantages, but may not be essential. On the other hand, some people want to know that their counsellor is a survivor of abuse to feel they could really understand, and many specialist counsellors are those who have recovered from their own experiences of abuse.

It may take time and some effort to find the right counsellor or group for you. Be willing to phone around and even to meet several people before you make a final decision. Most counsellors will talk to you on the phone, but it is often far better to visit the counsellor; in that way, you will get a better impression and also be able to assess the setting.
Memory Retrieval

During counselling, it is likely that memories will surface as part of the natural processes and that is to be expected. Many clients want to tell their story, others may need to be heard in a safe environment, and this too is a normal direction that some victims wish to take. On the other hand, no counsellor should, unless there are very exceptional circumstances, directly ask or prompt a client for memories, or to give additional details regarding their history.

Examples of memory retrieval work:
1. Being asked and/or being prompted to recall events and the details.
2. Being offered possible scenarios. Then possibly being asked if they are the same or similar.
3. Suggestions by the counsellor to invent scenarios so that they could work with them.

Memory retrieval work is generally discredited for the following reasons:
1. Clients can feel under pressure to please the counsellor and invent material.
2. Memories recovered in this way are usually considered poor evidence in both criminal and civil proceedings; unless there is substantial corroboration.
3. It is highly likely that a defence lawyer could easily discredit such evidence, and any counsellor who claimed to have worked in this way.
   Research False Memory Syndrome if you wish.
4. The client is seldom convinced that their recall is accurate. This can lead to doubts about themselves and considerable emotional turmoil.
5. Memories of abuse recovered in these ways frequently cause shock and states of high emotional trauma, whereas memories that surface naturally are usually more easily accepted and resolved. This is nearly always accompanied by states of being vulnerable to further suggestion and control.
6. It can result in increased dependency on the counsellor, which could be considered as abuse. It is therefore generally regarded as an obstacle to healthy resolution, where the ethical goal should be towards autonomy.

Where memory retrieval work is employed with the victims, the only significant benefit seems to be to the perpetrators of those who did the harm, their legal defences; or to those wishing to form a state of dependency.
Touch
Some forms of counselling and therapy include touching and/or holding, and if this is the case it will be an important issue for you to consider. Touch is very rare in one to one counselling for abuse because of the vulnerability of victims, but it can be a part of being in group work. Touch of any kind, even slight and accidental, can evoke strong emotions. Those feelings could be of comfort and be cathartic, or of discomfort and be damaging. On the other hand, not to touch in certain circumstances could feel like rejection.

Within the counselling profession there is a continuing debate regarding the use of and issues around touch, and a general principle within the guidelines of all bona fide healthcare professions is to ‘first, do no harm’ (Primum non nocere).

First do no harm. One of the principal precepts that all healthcare students are taught, and is a fundamental principle throughout the world. Another way to state it is that, “given an existing problem, it may be better not to do something, or even to do nothing, than to risk causing more harm than good.” It reminds the health care provider that they must consider the possible harm that any intervention might do. It is invoked when debating the use of an intervention that carries an obvious risk of harm but a less certain chance of benefit.

For you, it may be wise to mention the issue of touch from the start.

Once again, your own instincts about what you want are an important source of guidance.

If the style of counselling offered includes touching you may wish to look elsewhere, or to be able to exclude touch.

No counsellor or helper may insist on touch unless you agree.

The final judge of whether a counsellor or group is right for you can only be yourself, and in the end, you must trust your own instincts and how you feel. Ask yourself if you would feel comfortable telling this person intimate details of your life, and will be able to be open and honest with them regarding your material? Do you feel safe with them, do you like their manner towards you and their attitude to your questions? Ask yourself if you feel that you can trust this person. The more open you can be, the more likely it is that you will gain from the counselling or group work.

Warning signs.

The following site has useful information and a list of warning signs to help you identify when things may be going wrong between you, a therapist, group leaders or other helpers:

http://www.goodtherapy.org/blog/warning-signs-of-bad-therapy/
Useful Questions to Ask a Prospective Counsellor or Group Facilitator

(It may be easier to hand this list to the counsellor)

- Have you worked with victims of abuse and sexual violence?
- How long for?
- What kind of training have you had? & What are your qualifications?
- What is the goal that you aim for with clients?
- How do you work with survivors and what are the techniques you use?
- Can you work if I have few or no clear memories?
- Do I have to talk about the details of the abuse/incident?
- Please tell me about the professional support and supervision that you have?
- What are your views on touch, holding and physical contact between yourself and clients?
- What degree of confidentiality do you offer?
- How much do you charge? Is there a sliding scale or are there other arrangements to assist with the cost? (Do not dismiss the possibility of private counselling – some offer free places or delayed payment)
- How long do you work with clients on average?
- Ask for all the terms and conditions ~ in writing.
- Ask for the details of the professional bodies to which they belong, insurance cover and check this out.

If you have issues to do with race, religion, sexual orientation, disability, alcoholism, eating disorders, or other specific problems, or some other aspect important to you, prepare some special questions that will help you determine the attitude and experience of the therapist or group leaders.

You may feel strongly that you want to work with a woman or with a man. You may prefer to choose a counsellor of your race, economic background, sexual preference, religion, or someone who has experiences similar to yourself. If you have such preferences there may be specific organisations that only have counsellors of a certain gender, sexual orientation or religion that can help. Your own instincts about what you want are an important source of guidance.

Most organisations are made up of counsellors and helpers of all sorts of backgrounds, beliefs and sexual orientation. If specific attributes are important to you it is up to you to ask.

It may be worth considering the value of working with a helper that challenges some of your preferences…
Reflection

Once you’ve contacted several counsellors compare the way you felt when you were talking with them:

- Which one seemed to understand you best?
- Was it easy for you to clarify what you said when you felt that you had not been understood?
- Were you able to be honest and direct?
- Did you feel that the therapist was focused on you?
- Did you get some useful feedback when explaining your needs?
- Did the therapist seem fairly flexible and at ease?
- Was the therapist open and clear about the boundaries and what is expected of you?

When you start work with a counsellor, you should continue to bear in mind the above points and feel understood and supported.

Additionally, throughout therapy:

- You should feel generally liked and respected.
- You should be treated as a unique individual.
- There should be evidence that the therapist is interested in you and your issues.
- Expressions of emotion and information given should be limited to what is helpful to you.
- You should experience clear and safe boundaries within which you can work.
- You and your therapist should refrain from contact outside the process.
- The therapist should be comfortable and listen to you respectfully if and when you ask questions about any aspect of the process and therapeutic relationship, or if you wish to be critical or to challenge anything.
- You should gain a growing sense of being able to rely on your own feelings and find your own solutions.
- You should generally feel empowered and as an equal with the therapist.
SEXUAL ASSAULT REFERRAL CENTRES (SARCS)

SARCs are specialist 24/7 services for people who have been raped or sexually assaulted.

They aim to be one-stop services, providing medical care, counselling and forensic examinations following sexual assault/rape. In some locations they also provide general sexual health services. Facilities are free of charge and provided to women, men and young people. Some centres may be able to assist with child victims.

SARCs are mainly geared to assist in the immediate aftermath of an assault but even if the incident was not recent they may be able to point to other services such as Rape Crisis. SARCs are funded and run in partnership, usually between the NHS, police and the voluntary sector.

SARCs services are available even if victims do not wish to make a formal complaint to the police. Evidence can be gathered and the user can choose to have their forensic evidence samples stored. The intention is that service users will be in a position to take back some control of events and take time to decide whether or not to inform the police at a later stage.

In order to preserve any evidence, it is vital that help from the SARC is accessed as quickly as possible following the incident. For information and to book an appointment, phone the SARC nearest to you.

The Home Office were committed to having one SARC per police force by 2011. Should you need to access a SARC and there is none in your area, phone the next nearest to see if they can assist or contact your local Police and ask for details of their service provision.

VICTIM SUPPORT

Victim Support services are charity based organisations for victims and witnesses of crime. Specially trained volunteers deliver their services and although they work closely with the police and other parts of the criminal justice system, they are an independent charity.

Their services are free of charge and confidential.

They run a witness support service and Victim Support lines:

DABS ‘IN-HOUSE’ COUNSELLING

It has become apparent that some callers to the DABS Pathfinder Helpline are unable to access the counselling they need and as a response to this DABS offers its own ‘In-House’ counselling as an alternative.

1. A condensed course of therapy will be offered by the DABS Counsellor~ subject to their assessment with you.
2. This format is most suitable for victims and survivors of abuse and sexual violence.
3. Depending on the circumstances and assessment, it is usual to start with a short number of consecutive days to address the main issues~ then to follow up later with additional days and so on until the work is complete.
4. All DABS counsellors will be members of BACP or UKCP and will have met our terms and conditions.

DABS CONTRACT CONDITIONS

1. If at any point you consider that our counselling is not working or is unsuitable for you, the amounts you have paid will be refunded and you will be released from obligations to pay further sums.
2. The counsellor also has the right to cease their work with you at any point if they consider that therapy is not working successfully. Any fees paid up to that point will be refunded. The DABS counsellor will then support you as much as possible to find the further help you need.
3. You will receive a copy of the counsellors’ personal contract details.
4. There is a minimum charge of £50 per hour

All fees can be spread over time by paying a minimum of £20 per month by Bank Standing Order or other agreed method.

In cases of very low disposable income lesser amounts can be negotiated.

Please contact DABS for further details on:

DABS Disclaimer:

Be aware that while the clear majority of counsellors work to the highest ethical standards, a few do not. At present, there is no ultimate and effective independent regulation of the counselling profession.

As things stand anyone can call themselves a counsellor or therapist, they do not have to be trained, there is no legal requirement for counsellors to be insured or to belong to a regulatory body. Ultimately one can be faced with having to take time consuming civil action for damages against an individual if things go wrong. Even here, if the 'counsellor' has no assets it may not be a worthwhile pursuit.

Even if a counsellor does belong to a regulatory organisation and claims to be bound by their codes of ethics, faced with a complaint they can simply resign AND continue to practice. Some organisations specifically state that they exist to protect the counsellor. “The * was formed in 19## and we pride ourselves on looking after our members,”

No counsellor can be ‘struck off’ as is the case with medical practitioners and therefore many who have behaved unethically continue to work quite lawfully.

It is wise to check that the counsellor you work with is insured. It is also wise to find out a little about any regulatory body that a counsellor belongs to. As a general rule, they should belong to a large bona fide well known and respected association that can deal with complaints properly. Some smaller associations do not have the resources to investigate complaints very well and others, as stated above, are formed to protect their members rather than the public. Until there is proper compulsory state regulation this remains the case.

If you feel there is a problem: If a counsellor ever wants to have a sexual relationship with you, get out right away and report the therapist to the appropriate licensing board.

If you don't feel respected, valued, or understood, or if your experience is being minimised or distorted, that's a sign that you're in bad therapy, or at least that there's a bad relationship between you and the counsellor. If you feel there is something wrong in the counselling relationship, or if you get upset or angry with your counsellor, talk about it in your session. Afterward, you should feel you've been heard and understood. However, if your counsellor discounts your feelings or responds defensively, then you're not getting the respect you need. Look elsewhere.

Confidentiality is of major importance in counselling. Your counsellor will not tell anyone what you have told him or her, except in exceptional circumstances and only after discussing it with you. These circumstances usually involve your safety or the safety of others and there are some circumstances where the law does not permit confidentiality. You are advised to check out a prospective counsellor's own code of practice and to discuss this with your prospective counsellor first if you have any concerns.

Other services, particularly in the private sector, may exist in your area that we are not aware of so it can be useful to pursue enquiries and search other directories, using the general guidelines. They are there to help you find help that is most suitable for you. See Pages 11 to 19.

► It is also a good idea to contact your local Sexual Abuse Referral Centre (SARC) and Victim Support to see what services and information they offer. See Pages 21 & 22.

► Even if the services of the organisations we have provided do not seem quite right it is always worth contacting them as they may be able to offer you more promising leads.

► As mentioned, DABS offers its own counselling which you may wish to consider. Ultimately it is an opportunity for those affected by abuse and sexual violence to do therapy with a guarantee that if it isn’t helpful the fees will be refunded. Description of service: Stop It Now! UK and Ireland is a child sexual abuse prevention campaign and helpline. It is run by The Lucy Faithfull Foundation, the only UK-wide child protection charity dedicated solely to reducing the risk of children being sexually abused. We support adults to play their part in prevention through providing sound information, educating members of the public, training those who work with children and families, and running our confidential and anonymous helpline. Our helpline is available to:

- adults worried about the sexual behaviour of other adults or children and young people
- people worried about their own sexual thoughts or behaviour towards children, including those with concerns about their online behaviour
- friends and relatives of people arrested for sexual offending, including internet offending
- any other adult with a concern about child sexual abuse - including survivors and professionals

Description of service: Specialist Treatment Organisation for the Prevention of Sexual Offending that works with those at risk of sexual offending or reoffending. We are also work with the families of sex offenders, who also have to come to terms with being related to a sex offender. Sex offenders are often treated as the lowest of the low in our modern society. It is very hard for this client group to be able to access professional support and help. Practically no NHS services are available for this group. Most therapists do not want to work with these clients. At StopSO UK we want to enable sex offenders, or those who are acting out sexually, and those who have not acted out but have ‘troubling thoughts’ to be able to access experienced willing & able therapists. Many sex offenders contact us by searching for ‘sex offender help’ in their search engine, which brings up the StopSO website.

Description of service: The aim of our service was to increase the safety of the partners, ex-partners, family members and children of abusive men. This was achieved through a structured group-work programme for perpetrators delivered by two facilitators and an independent support service (ISS) dedicated to providing confidential 1:1 support to victims. We worked with all types of domestic abuse and managed risk through a robust case management system. Perpetrators were brought together to explore issues such as the effects of domestic abuse and the reasons behind their abuse. They were supported in learning new strategies for managing difficulties, developing emotional resilience and improving their relationships to their partner/ex-partner and children.

Description of service: Northampton Domestic Abuse Service (NDAS) began under the name of Northampton Women’s Aid in 1976. Originally staffed by volunteers the organisation has changed a lot since then but has always been dedicated to helping and supporting the victims of domestic abuse. Our experience and statistics tell us that women are the main victims of domestic abuse. Much of the work we do is supporting women. However, this is not inclusive. We have helped and continue to support victims and survivors from all genders and walks of life, covering all ethnicities, socio-economic statuses, sexual orientation and religions. Our new name reflects this, and the work we do in Northamptonshire as a whole county.

Description of service: We help people find a permanent home, manage their finances, take care of their health, and access work, training or education, as well as providing emotional and practical support to help people succeed in their daily lives. All of our services are built around the needs of our service users, ensuring that the individuals and families that we work with have control over the support they receive. We believe in empowering adults and children to have a voice in the choices that benefit them, their families and their local communities; to enable them to change their lives for the better, fulfil their aspirations and live the most independent, healthy and enriching lives possible.

E: SurreyDAinfo@ksscrc.scc.gsi.gov.uk

Description of service: Stepping Up, enables adults who recognise they are using physical or emotional abuse within their relationships to refer themselves to the service to receive a tailored package of support. The Surrey Against Domestic Abuse Partnership (SADA) has commissioned Kent, Surrey and Sussex Community Rehabilitation Company (KSS CRC) to deliver the domestic abuse intervention service, that aims to reduce offending and help make survivors and their children feel safer. At the same time, the perpetrator’s current or ex-partner will be offered support from a dedicated link worker who will work alongside specialist Domestic Abuse Outreach Services to help them make informed and safe choices for themselves and their children. Survivors will also be directed to other services to aid their recovery from the impact of domestic abuse.

Description of service: The Southmead Project is a registered charity providing free therapeutic and practical support to adults who were abused as children and have turned to drugs, alcohol and other ways of self-harming as a consequence of that trauma. The charity is active in research; runs very successful group programmes for parents, carers and concerned others of those affected by addiction, and delivers training programmes in abuse, addiction and disclosure across the UK. Research. Trauma, Drug Misuse and Transforming Identities by Professor Kim Etherington looks at the lives of drug misusers in their own words. It was produced by the Southmead Project with funding from European Social Funding and Big Lottery. Over the years the charity has championed other research and evaluation of its services and has amassed data which is used to develop appropriate interventions and to bolster the argument for appropriate support for survivors of child abuse and trauma.

Description of service: The Footprints Project mentors men and women who are leaving prison or serving a community sentence and are returning to Dorset, Somerset and Hampshire. We aim to reduce the risk of reoffending by helping our clients to re-integrate into their local community. We offer a ‘through the gate’ service, meeting with them prior to and on release from prison. Mentors, who are made up of trained volunteers from the community, support and guide their clients, providing the assistance they need to live a meaningful life without further resorting to crime.
